

EVERY where we find evidences of the fact that this is woman's age, and at no time has this truth been more forcibly shown than at the Convention of the Presbyterian Missionary Societies held in Forest Church on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Many of the brightest women on the peninsula were present, and their skillful management, their apt use of parliamentary law and the best methods in both their business and devotional meetings prove an executive ability that would rival any man's meeting ever held.

On Wednesday morning the fair delegates began to arrive and at the opening session at 10 o'clock there were 27 Societies and 12 bands represented.

The first day was devoted especially to the interests of the Home Missionary Society.

The exercises opened with devotions lead by Mrs. Crosby of Wilmington, President of the Home Missionary Society. After which Miss Martha Heaton, in behalf of the Middletown Society, very gracefully and cordially welcomed the visiting delegates, to which Mrs. Lewis of Elton, made a brief and appropriate response.

After the calling of the roll and reading the minutes, the following officers were elected.

Mrs. W. K. Crosby, of Wilmington, President; Miss Margaret Wilson, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. K. C. Southard of Newark, Recording Secretary; Mrs. S. E. Johnson, Wilmington, Treasurer; and Mrs. W. H. Logan, Princess Ann, Secretary Freedmen.

The morning was consumed with reports from the various departments, and an account of the Laura Southerland Memorial school at Concord, N. C.

The afternoon session was full of interest. The reports showed good work done by the society during the year, the support of a teacher in Kentucky, in Indian Territory and among the Ute Indians deserving special mention. The paper read from the missionary to the Ute Indians was listened to with interest. The work in the South among the Freedmen is also receiving a large share of attention from the society, and the industrial schools are an important factor in solving the negro question.

Mrs. Marks made a strong appeal to the members of the society in behalf of the new institution known as the Girl's Industrial School, located at 500 West 6th street, Wilmington. This institution belongs to the W. C. T. U. of this State, but in her large and comprehensive view of true missionary work, Mrs. Marks is endeavoring to awaken in the Christian women of her church, a sense of duty to the unfortunate ones near at hand as well as those afar off, and to this end would have them know something of the needs as well as the benefit of this industrial school that is to save the girls of our State from a worse fate than that which awaits the girls in heathendom. Mrs. Marks' words have already aroused the women and many are talking of ways and means to forward this work.

The evening session will be remembered by the many in attendance, for the fine addresses, and good music. The choir composed of Misses Vinie Lynch and Lillian Budd, Messrs. A. Green and J. C. Maxwell, rendered several beautiful anthems in excellent manner, and Mr. Maxwell gave a tenor solo "The Prodigal Son" in his usual pleasing style.

The address in the interests of the Home Society by Rev. Mr. McElmoyle of Elton was listened to with great pleasure, as was also that of Rev. Dr. Reigart, of Salisbury, in the interests of the Foreign Work. The meeting closed with the singing of a missionary hymn, and the benediction and as the delegates and friends parted for the night, they each one expressed real satisfaction with the day's work.

The meeting on Thursday was in the interest of the Foreign Missionary Society. The session opened at 9:30 in the morning with Mrs. Logan of Princess Anne, the President, in the chair, after devotional services of Mrs. Crosby of Wilmington spoke of the work and influence of the Christian Endeavor Society and made an appeal to the members of the organization in New Castle County in behalf of their collegiate Institute in Salt Lake City. After the roll call by the secretary Miss Barr, of Wilmington. Mrs. Wharton of Dover, read a very strong paper on Medical Missions, the point of which was the healing of the body as well as the soul, asserting that Christ our example, was the great Medical Missionary, also that women as doctors gained a footing in Japan, Corea, Persia, and the countries where women are secluded and could thus reach them when men, as missionaries could not, and gave incidents of grand results from medical missionaries in India, alone, where there are 40,000,000 shut up in Zenanas. Mrs. Findley of Elton, read the Treasurer's report. A very interesting letter from Miss Donaldson, the societies Medical Missionary, in India, was read by the Secretary, after the reading Mrs. Crosby lead in prayer behalf of this heroic young woman who has left home and friends to work for the master, Mrs. Logan suggested the quiet Sabbath hour from 5 to 6 P. M., be a set time when all members should offer prayer for missionary work.

Mrs. Read report of a missionary box recently sent to Rev. Mr. Ferris, missionary to India. It was very interesting and it was to meet in Wilmington, the 4:31 train after.

There were about 100 ladies in attendance at the ladies of Forest Church managing their entertainment for both days and tea on Wednesday was served at the church, and was not an important and enjoyable feature of the Convention. The arrangement saved time and furnished favorable opportunity for pleasant social intercourse. Housewives were largely relieved and could attend the sessions with real enjoyment.

There was slow coach movement at the Woman's Missionary Convention.

The Woman's Missionary Society knew their men when they selected the speakers for the Wednesday evening meeting.

The Methodist sisters showed their high appreciation of the Missionary Convention by the large attendance and careful noting the strong points in this woman's work.

Rev. Mr. McElmoyle said a good thing when he claimed that a bright, cultured, refined and well educated young woman was as competent to cast a ballot as the ignorant pauper that is drifting westward. Mrs. Crosby who presided over the Home Society, showed her a skillful parliamentarian, and a leader in church work, and one who with the most advanced ideas on all his questions, would not be without a following.

The choir, with organ accompaniment, and the selections, sung at the Missionary service were highly appreciated by the members of the convention as well as by the large audiences which gathered at the public meetings.

Our local W. C. T. U. must have felt greatly encouraged by the clear outspoken expressions of the leaders in Home Mission work. There came no uncertain sound from this intelligent Godly body of women. The saloon men received no quarters at their hands. No class of women are brought in more direct contact with the evil effects of the rum traffic than those who seek to help the poor and unfortunate.

Mrs. Marks received an eager hearing on Wednesday afternoon. Though limited to ten minutes, she said more within this limit than a man would have said in doubly that time. The evening audience would have gladly listened to her.

The Treasures' report of monies received for both foreign and home work even in these depressed times, showed a healthy condition of affairs.

Mrs. Dr. Collier, of Salisbury, Md., sister of Hon. Robert Bratton, member of Congress; and Miss Erna Graham, daughter of the late Col. S. A. Graham, were guests of Mrs. J. W. Sousa, at the Methodist parsonage.

Rev. Mr. McElmoyle and wife were entertained at the Manse. Mr. McElmoyle is the pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Elton.

Mrs. Beckwith, wife of Prof. Beckwith, of Delaware College, was entertained at the home of Mrs. F. P. Rose.

Mrs. S. M. Donnell, of Newark, one of the leading temperance women of the state, and through whose influence, largely, liquor license was not obtained for a saloon almost under the shadow of Delaware College, spent Wednesday at the Missionary convention.

Mrs. Nesbit, a daughter of the late Dr. Spotswood, of New Castle, was the guest of Mrs. William Taylor, at Mrs. Vasey's.

Mrs. Ferry and Miss Florence Reed, of Chesapeake City, were guests of Mrs. S. S. Holton.

Halloween Frolic.

Ancestral Traditions Kept Alive by the Small Boy.

Holloween here, as elsewhere, was celebrated by the rising generation in the popular manner, on Tuesday night; and every small boy in the community seemed to be a volunteer in the army of mischief that raids the country each year on this occasion.

There was no serious damage done though, other than the removing of gates, doorsteps, ringing door bells, throwing corn and making a great noise.

Possibly all unconsciously our youth pays tribute to our celtic ancestors across the sea in keeping up these traditional customs, though the halloween festival is not nearly so generally observed as it formerly was.

— In all our travels east and west we have nowhere found more brilliant and perfectly satisfactory lights than those that illuminate our streets and houses; and that is not merely because they are the "lights of the world," but because our plantations, the upper and lower verandahs and bright cheery rooms were really inviting, and I felt a little resentment when some of the great big westerners called it the "coop for the blue hen's chickens."

— But my state pride had a greater blow when I found not a single exhibit of our products or resources either in the State

Building or the agricultural building. Now

I don't say there were none there, but that I could not find any, nor anybody else that had done so.

morning on the 11:56 train and after several hours of investigation, they arrested

Walter Dubury.

Dubury is suspected of being implicated in the robbery of James Little's residence, near Greenville, Christiana hundred. The robbery occurred last March, but Dubury recently. They brought him to Middletown where he was locked up until the arrival of the 6:45 train, when he was taken to Wilmington to await trial.

carriage, turning it completely over and in their efforts to secure the accomplishment of his purposes, holding to the dangerous doctrine that since his motive was the securing the public good, corrupt means and use of bad men justified the end. Carter Harrison was the natural product and development of such a city as Chicago, and whatever criticism may be made as to his political methods and his record of the past, it is only fair to say that in the capacity of the World's Fair Mayor of Chicago, he rose to the full measure of a brave and strong man, and did himself and constituency great credit.

We do not believe that his assassination is anything other than the act of a man whose diseased brain had become unbalanced and morbid from serious contemplation of the doctrines of Henry George and other anarchistic doctrinaires.

"I say in all candor to my friends from the South as well as the West, it seems to me that the mistake on your part has been that you have not undertaken to educate your people in what is right. You have followed instead of leading, you have listened instead of teaching; and when at last your party comes into unquestioned and unchecked power in all the branches of this Government for the first time since it was turned out on its great failure of thirty years ago, you find that responsibility palsies the hand you had raised, and that you, trusted with the responsibilities of government, are compelled to come around for what is the true doctrine and the true interest of the country."

The above is a quotation from the speech of Hon. Anthony Higgins, delivered in the U. S. Senate on the Silver Repeal Bill. No truer words than these were ever spoken, and no one need look beyond the record of the proceedings of the present session of Congress for proof of the assertion.

When the debate in Congress over this late measure was rampant, and the public mind was drawn to the severest tension in its anxiety over this matter, a life-long Democrat of this community, of the highest character and intelligence, said to the writer, that it did seem to him that the South had become thoroughly dishonest upon these great economic principles that lie at the very vital of our government. If this be true (and it is) then, no greater calamity could hardly come to our government than for it to be absolutely in the control of these people and how thoroughly they are to control it, through the Democratic party, is demonstrated in the fact that President Cleveland found himself powerless to procure a measure, which was considered by him to be of vital importance to his administration and the country at large, except that he had the hearty support of the Republican party of the Senate coming from the great conservative and patriotic body of the country. For it be remembered that out of the 43 votes that were cast in the Senate for the repeal of the "Silver Purchasing Act" 22 of them were cast by Republicans, and out of the 32 votes that were cast against that measure, 22 were Democrats representing constituencies from that section of the country alluded to by Senator Higgins in his speech.

SENATOR SHERMAN's scathing arraignment of the Democratic Senators and their supporters and refining interests. We have always advocated a social organization for the young men, and believe that with good management the new Athletic Club will be able to fill a niche which has long been empty in our Town. They should receive the practical encouragement of all good citizens.

THE WORLD'S FAIR FINANCES. The accounts of the World's Fair have not yet been audited, and therefore nothing more than an approximate estimate can be had as to the receipts and expenditures, but such figures as we have available show that the aggregate receipts of money by the exposition amount to about twenty-eight million and four hundred thousand dollars, which includes the amounts received from the sale of the capital stock and individual subscribers. The total costs of the exposition, in round numbers, will amount to twenty-five million dollars, leaving a balance of about three million and four hundred thousand dollars to be turned over to the stockholders.

THE Democratic Party is unable to claim the victory for the passage of the Repeal as theirs. Mr. Cleveland has had the honesty to compliment the Republicans upon the firm stand and the uncompromising position they have taken in the matter, for they have stood by him when his own party was on the point of deserting him. The Old Line Democratic to whom we referred in our last Saturday's issue, and who for so long had before him the visions of honest and just legislation which his Party, when they finally came into power would give, must have another sigh of sorrow and regret as he notes the vote upon the Silver Repeal on Monday. Out of the 43 Senators who voted in the affirmative, 22 were Republicans; and yet some of our Democratic friends have had the unqualified nerve to accuse the Republicans of endeavoring to defeat its passage. Never-the-less the fact remains that the Sherman Repeal Bill could never have been passed without the Republican votes. The Democratic Party would have been absolutely unable to have mustered sufficient votes to have passed the Bill.

THE World's Fair that for the past six months has been the delight not only of America but all nations has come to an end, and the sincere verdict of all creation is that it was a great work greatly done. All that has been said and written of its wonders and glories seem meager beside the reality as viewed by the appreciative visitor, for it was not only the marvel of the nineteenth century but of the ages. The location was ideal; the mingling of land and water, and the scenic effects of beautiful, Jackson Park, leave a picture that will never fade from the memory of one of the millions who entered the gates of the White City. We can but regret that the great exposition was so short-lived, and that it could not be perpetuated as a lasting memorial. But 'though the graceful and beautiful architecture of the glittering city by the great western lake will soon fade away, the lessons learned there will abide forever in the minds and hearts of the people, and the great spirit of human achievement will go on and on to even greater triumphs in future years. The memory of the great Fair is an abiding inspiration.

idea to particularly interest them in the preparation of the Sunday breakfast, and to give each of them a certain thing to do; then the preparation of this meal will be as jolly as a picnic.

Johns Hopkins University has enrolled among its students this year a rather remarkable woman in the person of Mrs. Arthur Davis. Before her marriage she graduated with high honors from Columbian University in Washington. She passed a perfect examination for the nautical almanac office, making 100 per cent. while her competitors, all men, and all college graduates, retired from the examination room early in the day, unable to solve the problems presented. She invented a Washington-Greenwich table which is now in observatory use. She will study for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

"Nancy Rose" is the name of the woman who for thirty-five years has been the lighthouse keeper at Stony Point, on the Hudson. Her husband was appointed to that position in 1853, but died five years later, leaving her with a family of young children to support. Her friends used their influence to have her appointed in his place, and succeeded. No serious accidents have occurred there during the whole term of Nancy Rose's tenure of office.

The news from Virginia is very disquieting to the democratic managers. It seems that O'Farrell has made his whole campaign on the basis that the silver question would be settled in congress by a compromise, and now, according to his own frantic telegram to his democratic friends, the prospect of unconditional repeal has knocked the bottom out of every speech he has made in the campaign, and he regards his defeat as probable, unless the final vote on the Voorhees bill has made it certain that they will carry Virginia, because of the preponderance of the silver sentiment in the rural sections of the state. Republicans in Congress are as a rule perfectly indifferent to the result in Virginia. They say it will not in the end be of any benefit to the to the republican party to have the populists carry Virginia. They are, however, enjoying the fight of the democratic brethren.

LITERARY NOTES.

The Century begins a new volume with the November number with more than its usual amount of superior reading matter and beautiful illustrations.

There are a number of pleasing short stories, and sketches, besides the opening chapter of a new novelette by Charles Egbert Craddock, complete in two numbers, and the beginning of several series of charming stories and adventures.

The portrait of Edwin Booth with the accompanying "Memories and Letters" of the greatest American tragedian is alone worth the price of the magazine. The Century is a valuable acquisition to the library table or the office.

The St. Nicholas, that staunch friend of young folks, enters upon its 21st volume with the November number and a veritable birthday feast for its readers.

Mark Twain, Geo. W. Cable, Susan Coolidge, and many other noted writers furnish delight for old as well as young and every page contains interesting and profitable reading.
